I was an intern a decade ago now but I still remember it the way soldiers remember war I am Sandeep Jauhar's story of his days and nights in residency at a busy hospital in New York City a trial that led him to question every assumption about medical care today residency and especially the first year called internship is legendary for its brutality working eighty hours or more per week most new doctors spend their first year asking themselves why they wanted to be doctors in the first place Jauhar's internship was even more harrowing than most he switched from physics to medicine in order to follow a more humane calling only to find that medicine put patients' concerns last he struggled to find a place among squadrons of cocky residents and doctors he challenged the practices of the internship in the new york times attracting the suspicions of the medical bureaucracy then suddenly stricken he became a patient himself and came to see that today's high tech high pressure medicine can be a humane science after all now a thriving cardiologist jauhar has all the qualities you'd want in your own doctor expertise insight a feel for the human factor a sense of humor and a keen awareness of the worries that we all have in common his beautifully written memoir explains the inner workings of modern medicine with rare candor and insight reviews 'a sensitive thoughtful observer and an experienced gifted writer it will be the standard by which future such memoirs will be judged' — abraham verghese author of My Own Country 'in a voice of profound honesty and intelligence sandeep jauhar gives us an insider's look at the medical profession and also a dramatic account of the psychological challenges of early adulthood' — akhil sharma author of An Obedient Father the dutch experience has influenced the debate on euthanasia and death with dignity around the globe especially with regard to whether physician assisted suicide and euthanasia should be legitimized or legalized a review of the literature reveals complex and often contradictory views about the dutch experience some claim that the netherlands offers a model for the world to follow others believe that the netherlands represents danger rather than promise and that the dutch experience is the definitive answer regarding why we should not make active euthanasia and physician assisted suicide part of our lives given these contradictory views it has become clear that fieldwork is essential to developing a more informed opinion having investigated the dutch experience for a number of years and after thoroughly reading the vast literature published in english i went to the netherlands for one month in the summer of 1999 to get a feel for the local situation i felt that this would provide the basis on which i could better interpret the findings of the available literature i visited the major centers of medical ethics as well as some research hospitals and spoke with leading figures in the euthanasia policy and practice the time spent was extremely beneficial and enriching i followed in the footsteps of carlos gomez who published a book following one month of extensive research in the netherlands drawing on naturally occurring doctor patient conversations in real life medical consultations this book analyzes the similarities and differences in doctor patient communication and patient satisfaction between traditional chinese medicine tcm and western medicine wm practiced in china little research is available looking at wm being practiced in asian countries and misunderstanding about eastern medicines such as tcm can result in unwarranted claims and suspicions this volume contributes to research on doctor patient communication by exploring the communication behaviors between doctors and older patients who are able to communicate independently in both tcm and wm practiced in mainland china and evaluating patient satisfaction with their medical experiences the book reports findings and insights from three independent and methodologically diverse studies drawing on data from 69 real life medical consultations 30 from tcm and 39 from wm using conversation analysis the roter interaction analysis system and both quantitative and qualitative methods ying jin examines the differences between tcm and wm to help reveal the dynamics of doctor patient interactions the contextual details and the impact of the clinical culture on medical communication this insightful book will appeal to scholars and students from linguistics language and health communication as well as medical practitioners interested in doctor patient communication and intercultural communication the findings reported here will shine a light on the relationship between clinical differences health communication and patient outcomes
